The map above shows the countries where the Web and social media have played a significant (pink) or major (red) role in political mobilisation over the past year.